

Le Bristol Paris unveils the Eden Suite, a secret garden in the sky, dedicated to well-being

High above the rooftops of Paris, the Eden Suite crowns Le Bristol with a new chapter in its ongoing metamorphosis, launched in celebration of the palace's centenary. Tucked away on the sixth floor, this exceptional hideaway opens onto a lush, tree-lined terrace, a secluded garden in the air, invisible from the street, yet unforgettable for those who discover it.

Following the complete redesign of the Azur, Imperial, and Honeymoon Suites, Elvira and Narcisa Oetker now reveal a fresh vision for this serene retreat. Here, nature, fine craftsmanship, curated art, and wellness-infused living come together in perfect harmony.

Bathed in a soft palette of chalk and botanical greens, the Eden Suite reflects the natural beauty of its terrace garden. Every detail contributes to a sense of understated luxury, from textured drapes by Maison Schumacher and Braquenié, to delicate cushions by Pierre Frey, and a silken Clarence House sofa embroidered with stylized foliage. The living room, illuminated by vintage Baguès Paris and Maison Charles lamps sourced from the Saint-Ouen flea market, is anchored by a bamboo-inspired bronze console by Osanna Visconti. Outside, a lava stone table by Paola Lenti and Marella Ferrera continues this dreamlike dialogue between design and nature.

But the suite's most enchanting secret lies discreetly within a glass cube, enveloped in greenery, a private wellness sanctuary complete with hammam, sauna, rain shower, jacuzzi, and massage table, available at any hour for total disconnection. It's a timeless escape, designed to be experienced at one's own rhythm.

The Eden Suite embodies Le Bristol Paris' vision of becoming a sanctuary of contemporary well-being. This ambition is further echoed in the ongoing transformation of the hotel's fitness and spa areas, which will soon welcome the iconic skincare brand La Mer. Together, these spaces promise a holistic, deeply restorative experience, in perfect harmony with body and mind.

Like a suspended oasis, the Eden Suite also marks the first step in an even more ambitious project. It will soon be joined by the Azur Suite and the entirety of the top floor of Le Bristol's Résidence wing, forming a sprawling 1,500 m² private domain, set to become the largest suite in any Parisian palace. A one-of-a-kind destination, where the art de vivre of Le Bristol Paris will shine like never before.
